Oceansunsunsets Personal Photo GalleryA Great GiftYellow flowers have such a sense of joy and delight associated with them. They can make a wonderful gift for just about anyone. It has been said that they are associated with sunny emotions. I love the warmth of the sunshine and the light that it brings to our lives. In a yellow flower or rose, one can seem to almost sense the brightness of sunshine radiating from within.The Meaning Behind Yellow FlowersSome of the emotions associated with yellow roses, for example, are happiness, joy, freedom, delight, gladness, and friendship. While they are known to not necessarily symbolize strong romantic love or affection, I don't see why one couldn't give yellow roses to someone that would love them as much as any other rose.However, it may not be the best choice for a newer relationship in that sense if you are trying to definitely send a message. What I am referring to is the idea that once one knows that a person loves yellow, it could definitely be a go-to choice for that loved one. For example, I am thinking right now of a young lady whose favorite color is yellow. She couldn't be happier with a bouquet of yellow roses over any other! It would, in fact, be the color that would show the most love to her.Yellow, the Safe and Perfect ChoiceThe main difference worth noting is that if you need a safe color to choose for someone, then yellow is a great choice! I think it's a true win, because of all the happy emotions it conjures up. So consider really making someone's day by giving some yellow roses or flowers. It's sure to bring real joy. Imagine if someone were sick and they received yellow flowers as a pick-me-up. They would love it!A lovely little yellow flower. Oceansunsunsets Personal Photo LibraryA beautiful, bright, hibiscus flower.Oceansunsunsets Personal Photo LibraryInteresting yellow orchid flowers.Oceansunsunsets Personal Photo LibraryUsing Yellow Flowers in the Garden LandscapeYellow flowers can be a wonderful addition to any flower garden. In fact, they can be a lovely addition to any garden, period. I have grown some really cheerful little yellow flowers in pots on the front porch, or on my back deck. What is interesting about this is that those aren't typically my go to colors for flowers to grow in these areas. They kind of just happened for one reason for another, and I ended up growing to love them so much.My First Experience With Yellow FlowersMy first experience with yellow flowers in a garden, that I can remember as a young child, was when my parents grew several different rose bushes in our backyard. We had quite a variety along the back fence and if you have the opportunity to do this, yellow makes a wonderful complimentary color to all the other rose colors. I will always cherish those rose bushes in my memory and in the few photos I have.MarigoldOne of my favorite yellow flowers I have grown in various gardens around my house was marigold flowers. Marigolds are such wonderful little flowers to grow, and many moths just love them. Marigold flower seeds are also easy to harvest once a flower bud has died. These can be saved for the next season or planted right away in a new location.CosmosAnother favorite yellow flower I have grown is cosmos. I love growing cosmos flowers from seed. They have an almost whimsical, long-stemmed beauty about them. They sell cosmos seed blends that include yellow and orange flower seeds in them.ZinniaCosmos flowers grow well alongside zinnia flowers. There are some nice yellow colored zinnias you can grow in a mix with other zinnias. When I first attempted to attract butterflies to my garden, these were some of the flowers I really tried to focus on. In fact, I have grown a zinnia flower garden every year for several years now. They always include yellow zinnias and the color brings a real richness and diversity to my garden. It makes for a well-rounded looking garden.Yellow roses are so lovely to see growing in a rose garden. Yellow, the Brightest Color! should not have been surprised, but I was surprised just how much life the color yellow brings to my gardens when I grow yellow flowers there. I think it's perhaps due to the fact I don't typically pick yellows in other areas of my life, like for clothing or accessories for example. I also don't pick yellows when I decorate my home. It has caused me to think that I am not fond of yellow, but as I have grown older, I truly have realized how much I actually do like yellow.If you have never tried to grow yellow flowers in your gardens or kept them to a minimum, I can highly recommend you try them out in the future. You might really come to love them as I have.Multiple different roses in a rose garden. You can see some yellow rose bushes in the foreground here. The color yellow reminds me of some of my grandfather's roses that he used to grow and at least one variety was always yellow. My grandmother had her favorite lemon yellow daylilies in her garden. I have often mixed different varieties of yellow blooming flowers in our garden.Paula (author) from The Midwest, USA on August 17, 2017:How interesting, thank you for sharing it with me. I will have to think on what that might have been. Maybe a type of lily? I hope your seeds work out for you.JAN PORTERFIELD on August 13, 2017:My husband and I recently saw some unusual flowers we had not seen before...the flowers looked like a black eyed susan, but the plant itself was about a foot tall and looked almost like a hosta with a thick stalk, dark waxy leaves and suddenly there was a cluster of yellow flowers at the top...very unusual we thought, do you know what they are??? we did get a dried flower and have some seeds we are going to try to start!!!Paula (author) from The Midwest, USA on December 03, 2016:Thank you for your comment. I felt the same way about the different colors of yellow.DDE on December 02, 2016:Beautiful photos and the color is bright and nourishing!Paula (author) from The Midwest, USA on December 01, 2016:Hello, Venkatachari. The different colors of flowers in the garden seem to bring so much joy to our lives. I too love the colors you mentioned! There is something very special about them. Thank you for your kind words about my hub.Paula (author) from The Midwest, USA on December 01, 2016:Hello Sallybea. I too like yellow flowers next to blue ones in a garden. I have never grown them like that in my own, but would like to one day. It's so wonderful how gardens can lift our spirits. I totally agree!Paula (author) from The Midwest, USA on November 30, 2016:Hello Jodah, I am so glad you like yellow flowers and enjoyed my photos! I will look forward to reading your hub, as that sounds so interesting. Thank you for the kind words and visit to my page.Venkatachari M from Hyderabad, India on November 29, 2016:I love yellow flowers as well as white, rose and blue also. Different colours give us different kinds of joy and feelings. You have brought this fact beautifully through your hub.Sally Gulbrandsen from Norfolk on November 29, 2016:My favourite rose is a yellow one. I particularly like yellow flowers when they are planted alongside complimentary blue flowers. Somehow it just seems to lift my spirits in a garden,John Hansen from Gondwana Land on November 28, 2016:A beautiful hub, Paula. Stunning photos, and I particularly like yellow flowers. You may be interested in reading a hub of mine "My Father's Rose" about the miracle of a yellow flowering rose we once bought him. Well done with this one. I enjoyed it.
